Effective Procurement

- What are the goals of your procurement process?
- Must be more than simply lowest bid
- Research shows that the lowest bid is often the most expensive and most delayed

Goals

- Timely Completions
- Safe Completions
- On Budget
- Best Bid
- Other?

Construction Procurement

Ask for safety records and proof of performance (list of clients who recommend them)

Does your policy consider all legislative requirements – supporting and protecting apprentices?

Common Goals

- Clear, fair, and consistent contract terms.

(LeDuc)

- Understanding of Responsibilities.

(seminal case w.r.t. Municipality being liable)

Municipal Leaders Fiscal Accountability

- Increased scrutiny and accountability combined with greater fiscal challenges means procurement more important than ever
- Save taxpayer money, staff time and potentially save lives by establishing and ensuring compliance of a policy that protects you and your community
- Increased complexity and new technology means ensuring you are hiring contractors who will address these emerging demands

Effective Elements of Procurement Policy

To be able to identify:

- Capability
- Capacity
- Compliance
- Cost

Current Practice Pitfalls

- Low bid = best bid
- No stated/written/defined goals
- Failure to require general contractor to name major sub-contractors
- Others?

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

Alter Practices

(ex: require identification of major sub contractors)

Purposeful Procurement Practices

Provincial Contractor Registry

Two major Ontario hospitals bogged down in years of delays, cost overruns and delayed patient care, and numerous other major projects in cities across province all of which could have been avoided if they had talked to another municipality about their experience.

Kitchener-Waterloo

'Poor co-ordination' blamed for 20-month construction delay at Cambridge Memorial Hospital

Fifth delay this year means CMH can't provide care in new acute care A-wing until October 2018
